Israel remains committed to a final-status agreement whereby Palestinians would have full judicial autonomy under the rubric of an independent state. One of the main obstacles to progress toward an agreement is the systematic incitement against Israelis by the leadership and official media of the Palestinian Authority, much of which is specifically targeted at minors in both educational materials and entertainment. The terror attacks that we have witnessed in recent weeks sadly testify to the impact of this campaign, as does the high incidence of violent crime against Israelis perpetrated by minors. Genuine improvement in the situation of Palestinian minors requires practical efforts on the part of the Palestinian leadership to stop the indoctrination of children for military and political purposes. I trust that you will communicate the need to work constructively on this problem to all those in Enfield Southgate dedicated, as we are, to the realisation of a lasting peace.

Yours sincerely,

Daniel Taub
Ambassador of Israel to the Court of St. James's
