In 2009, the Scottish Government, Dyslexia Scotland and the Cross Party Group on Dyslexia in the Scottish Parliament agreed a working definition of dyslexia:

“Dyslexia can be described as a continuum of difficulties in learning to read, write and/or spell, which persist despite the provision of appropriate learning opportunities. These difficulties often do not reflect an individual’s cognitive abilities and may not be typical of performance in other areas”

It is not unusual for younger children to have these difficulties. Concerns should only be raised if the difficulties continue and/or do not change when supported.
Homework Tips

Be patient

- Keep calm. Dealing with homework after a day at school can be tricky. Allow time to relax before starting any homework.

Be organised

- Identify a quiet clutter-free place to do homework.
- Set a routine with room for flexibility around after-school activities.
- Use a visual planner of tasks to be done and tick off when completed.
- Chunk homework into manageable bits and set a time limit with a break in between.
- Collect useful materials like paper, pens, pencils, ruler, calculator, number square, text books and keep them together in a ‘homework box/folder’.

Be encouraging

- Encourage/praise him/her for what he/she does well.
- Remember, mistakes are OK.
- Do not get worried about the number of spelling errors, praise the content of work.

Identification and Support

Identifying and assessing dyslexia is an ongoing process.

Information is gathered over a period of time through classroom observations, looking at the child’s/young person’s work and class based assessments rather than a single test.

Discussion and working together is a key part of the assessment process and participants may include School ASN Co-ordinator, Class Teacher, Parents, East Ayrshire Support Team and the Education Psychologist.

Gathered evidence is discussed and appropriate supports are put in place.

Progress is reviewed regularly.
Talking to your child about dyslexia

It can be helpful for children/young people to understand that dyslexia is a learning difference, it is not that he/she has something wrong with them but they learn in a different way.

Being told that you are dyslexic can be a relief and help children/young people understand why they find certain things more difficult.

It can be helpful to explain that dyslexia:

- is common and other people in school, and maybe even others in their class, or in the family are dyslexic

- does NOT mean they are ‘stupid’. Everyone learns differently and have things they find tricky and things which are easier for them

- is something that people are born with, but it can get better with help

- should not hold them back. It can be helpful to research and talk about famous people who are dyslexic and have gone on to have very successful careers despite their difficulties e.g. Jamie Oliver

Reassure them that everyone is different and without our individual differences the world would be a very boring place.
