

Peace Memorial Park Special Features

Peace Memorial Park is Wigston's War Memorial. Following public subscription after the Great War, the Park was founded in 1921 and since that time has changed and evolved, eventually becoming the welcoming and peaceful green space we have today, much loved and used by the local community. A success reflected in the achievement of Green Flag status since 2007

Within the Park, there are many special features and points of interest which are described and pictured below. These have mostly been introduced since the major upgrade of Peace Memorial Park which took place from 1998 to 2003, following a grant from the Heritage Lottery Fund:

The Main Entrance Gates

Whereas the original style of park railings was retained in the upgrade, the gates were a new design. They are decorated with stylised birds on the gateposts, and banding across the gates showing the name of the park along with stylised barbed wire, poppies and doves.

The Carpet Badge Bed

A longstanding feature of the Park, the Carpet Badge Bed was fully restored during the renovations and annually is planted to celebrate local groups and organisations. Depicted here is the logo of "Pride of the Borough" who lead the Borough's entry in the East Midlands in Bloom competition. The bed is laid out with small hardy annuals and succulents.

The Oak Sculpture

Affectionately referred to as "the Totem Pole", this solid oak sculpture was the result of collaboration between a local youth club and a wood sculptor from Rutland. The youngsters were given the history of the Park and its association with the Great War and asked to come up with a design. The result is this superb work of art which starts off at its base with twisted barbed wire, the word "Peace", and poppies before finally evolving into flying doves. It is situated on the left just inside the main entrance.

The Sensory/Memorial Garden

This quiet corner of the Park contains raised beds with scented and tactile plants, along with a small rill with five bubbling fountains. The main purpose of this garden is to enhance the enjoyment of the Park for those with sight problems. There are metal plaques on the wooden surround describing the plants therein, in written English as well as Braille. There are also several memorial benches within this area.

The Memorial Wall

Probably the most significant feature within the whole Park, this wall is cherished by the whole community and is the focal point of the annual Service of Remembrance in Wigston each November. The plaques record the names of the fallen in the two world wars, but sadly there have been, and still are, conflicts since then and there is currently (2010) another plaque being prepared in order that this poignant but important Roll of Honour continues.

The Curved Bench

Outside the north-west corner of the Bowling Green is the Curved Bench. Each of its five back supports records a different era in history of the area which contains the Park, from prehistoric to the present day.

This leaflet supplements the History of Peace Memorial Park booklet created at the time of the upgrade.

There are in excess of 120 significant trees in the park, approximately a third of them are labelled giving the common and botanical name.
