8 Closer Collaboration with Little Gransden

(a) A written report was presented by Rachel Fogg, a copy of which is on file.

The report recorded the outcome of a meeting between Nick Wareham, Churchwarden of Little Gransden, Rachel Fogg, Churchwarden of Great Gransden and Hugh McCurdy, Archdeacon of Huntingdon and Wisbech.

Their meeting considered whether it was timely to consider formally combining the parishes so that the administrative burden on priest and laity would be reduced and overall efficiency increased so that longer-term sustainability is secured.

A consultation process involving both PCCs and the wider community would be necessary before any decision was made.

The next step for the PCCs would be to commence a discussion about how the parishes could work more efficiently together, one possible outcome being the formation of a combined parish of Great and Little Gransden. The Archdeacon was supportive of a process which would include the PCCs and the Annual meeting of the Parishioners, but also in due course wider groups within the villages.

The PCC agreed that it was timely to commence this discussion and consultation and that the Archdeacon be invited to a public meeting; that this decision be communicated to the other churches in the benefice; and that there should be an item on the APCM agenda for discussion.

(b) People Full Alive

Rachel was to include an item in Roundabout on the diocesan strategy and look to arrange a meeting in the Autumn of this year.
