

The Tibetan speaks through KHB.

We greet you my friends, once again we come together. It is not surprising to you I know when we tell you that so many come to join with you, the room it is filled with loving beings from the spirit world. They also have a need like you to be able to come together, joining the two worlds so that they become as one for a short time.

You perhaps cannot see them, it is like an endless, shall we say queue of people waiting to come close. There are so few of your groups in the physical world that offer themselves in service in the way that you do, by sitting regularly, inviting guests to come and be with you. Yes there are many many groups in the physical world, yet there are far more in the spirit world seeking to join with you, to learn the ways that they need to go forward in their life, to progress on their spiritual journey. They too must offer themselves in service so that they may benefit and progress; is this not the same with you?

This one [KHBJ is always asking for my name, but he cannot say it anyway, so what is the point I am the one that you know as the Tibetan, and I come to you on occasions to have a few words. My life is one of prayer, praying for all creation, the creation of the Great Spirit If only you could see the need of this, and other worlds. The intolerable sufferings which mankind inflicts on one another; the terrible diseases that ravage your world, it is said that nature can be very cruel; not as cruel as mankind. Mankind has a heart, which is hard to inflict suffering on others, to promote wars and have a greed that impels them to take from others.

It is for these, these happenings that I, and others, sit and pray that they may end, you may think that this is a thankless task but isn't. Do you not know yourselves the power of prayer and what can be accomplished when many come together? Come together to add their power of thought and prayer to those of the earthly world, and to those in spirit; it is a power that you cannot conceive.

I do not wish to cause despair, this is my life and I want you to know this, and to know who I am, and that which I do. Yet wherever there is that darkness there is also the light, a great beautiful light which comes from people such as you, with loving hearts and kindness. This gives us great joy; it helps us to know that that which we do is so worthy. I regret to say that there will be darker days before you, the economies of your world are shrinking causing great havoc, but all these things must end, and again the light will shine and the world will be uplifted and become a glorious place in which to live.

How much more glorious it would be when mankind can put behind them all thoughts of evil and greed. What a truly wonderful world this would be, how much happiness there would be. Yet perhaps, perhaps this cannot happen, how else can mankind learn their lessons, which they are here to experience. Yet it is the individual, the individual who must progress, and this happens so often. Each one of you have had your darker moments in other lives and this you have overcome, and now your lives are almost fulfilled. You no longer have a need to return to this physical plane, and that my friends is a choice you must make when you finally return to the spirit world.

I will not keep you, there are others who wish to come and talk with you. It gives me great joy, great pleasure to come to you on these occasions. I give you my love my friends, and ask that the blessing of the Great One will dwell upon you. Goodbye for now.
