Hints For Exhibitors

It is possible that many gardeners are too shy to enter exhibits in their horticultural show, put off by the thought that those who exhibit are some kind of expert with secret knowledge and a special ability. Don't be afraid, they all had to start somewhere. If you've grown it and are proud of it, then show it! Remember in any show the exhibits that don't win a prize ticket are just as important as those that do. Hopefully the following hints will enable and encourage you to enter at least one exhibit in the show.

The first thing to remember is to read the schedule carefully and then make sure that your exhibit is in accordance with the schedule description. Big is not always best, unless the schedule calls for the biggest. It doesn't often do this and so what you need to aim for is a well-balanced exhibit, fresh, clean, free from blemish or damage and uniform. This applies equally to flowers, fruit and vegetables. Resist the temptation to put one big one in with four smaller ones, much better to put in five that are equal in size, shape and quality.

Vegetables: Be careful when lifting from the garden. With parsnips, carrots etc. try not to break off that fine long tail. If the schedule states trimmed the tops must be reduced to 75mm untrimmed just as harvested roots and tops left intact. For better presentation bind the tops with raffia or natural string. Parsnips, carrots, beans, beetroot etc. are usually just laid out on the show table, but potatoes, tomatoes, shallots, peppers etc., are best placed on a plate, a paper one will do. Shallots look better mounted on dry sand and onions on rings. The schedule will normally say if roots are to be left on, but even so it is probably better to leave roots on cabbages and lettuces, they will keep fresh longer. All varieties of beans and peas should be displayed with stalks attached. Fruits and berries should have stalks intact and should not be polished.

Flowers: Make sure that they are firm in the vase and are taking up water. Newspaper or oasis is a good material to use to wedge the stems in the vase, and they will stay where you want them to be. Where 5 blooms are called for it is best to arrange them in 2 and 3, either 2 above and 3 below or vice-versa. If 3 blooms then arrange them 2 and 1 etc.

Pot Plants: Make sure the size of pot that your exhibit is in, conforms to the schedule. The schedule will normally say not exceeding a certain size, though any smaller is acceptable.

These are just a few tips to help the first time exhibitor, if you want further information then please consult the RHS Show Handbook
