ART SOCIETY SHOW AT ALLEN GALLERY

SIXTY-FIVE exhibits of Alton Art Society's members' work are currently on display at the Allen gallery, Church Street, and comprise a varied selection of water colours, gouache, pastels, silk screen prints, pen and ink etc., and oils. The first item on display is an enamel, "Papillon," by Kathleen Beadle.

A number of snow scenes have made their appearance, and mainly the works are easily understood.

In the water colour, gouache, pastels, silk screen prints, pen and ink section, appear a comprehensive selection of the works of Jean Cooke, D. G. Cockayne, Dorothy Dean, Viola Peacock, Harold Taylor, Joan Taylor, Betty M. Wardle, Dorrie Hutchings, Mary Towsey, Guy Vaesen, Pru Taply, Joan Wingate, N. E. Morley, M. W. E. Walker, Evelyn R. Mathias, Martin Smillie, Patrick Edwards, Catherine Curtis, Faith Harris,

L. H. P. Wilding and Marjorie J. Jarvis.

This section consists of 34 exhibits ranging over varied subjects.

Exhibitors in this section are Toni Goffe, Tana Riviere, Mary Towsey, Sheila Halliwell, Molly Dipwiddie, J. Oliphant, B. Chambers, Marjorie Fagan, Gina Aronsberg, Joan Bickerdike, Joan Heathcote, Gordon Trimming, Jennifer Lines, Zweena Ta'Bois, Barbara Van der Noot, P. J. Walters, Norah Coggin, Jean Greaves, Sybil Grocock, R. L. Bickerdike, K. Hornell and M. Sixsmith.

Items on display can be purchased, and prices range from £15 to £150.

The exhibition is well worth a visit — not only to enjoy the works of Alton's local Art Society, but to encourage this long-standing society in its work.

The exhibition will continue at the Allen Gallery until Friday, March 19th.

Not a pavement artists' convention—just the "hanging committee" of Alton Art Society, which is currently holding its Spring Exhibition in the Allen Gallery, in Church Street. Chairman Peter Edwards and colleagues Gina Aronsberg and Jean Cook ponder the problem of what to hang and where to hang.
