REPORT BACK from PARISH CHAIRMAN BARRY DAVOLLS

LOPENHEAD EXPANSION GETS THE GO-AHEAD

SSDC's Area North Committee recently approved Probiotic's application to erect a new detached building at Lopenhead to the north east corner of the old nursery site. The go ahead has been given for a two storey building approximately 2 metres taller than existing buildings with a working floor area approximately 37% greater than the Tesco Ilminster store.

The building will include offices, manufacturing, storage and distribution (B1,B2 and B8) and is intended to provide the capacity for Probiotic's expansion plans over the next decade. The building is to be mitigated by the introduction of random coloured panels to visually break up the solid mass with existing conifers removed and replaced by a landscaping scheme similar to that already approved on the existing site. Despite objections from Lopen and South Petherton Parish Councils along with numerous individuals, SSDC officers and the Area North committee concluded that the recently introduced National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF) supports the expansion of existing rural businesses even though the relevant local plan may not. In my view, this could be viewed as a landmark decision of national importance. If it is correct that the NPPF unconditionally supports the expansion of existing rural businesses, when you consider it also supports new rural business provision as well as rural diversification where underused agricultural buildings can be converted to office and industrial use, this effectively results in a policy that would allow any scale of industrial development at any location, irrespective of infrastructure and/or local need, and circumvents any protection against inappropriate development in the open countryside. Add to this the proposed implementation of permitted development rights that would allow the conversion of offices and light industrial units to housing, and the NPPF's claimed protection for the open countryside would simply not exist. If this interpretation of the NPPF is correct, it would actually be easier to develop in the open countryside than in many urban areas especially when you consider that highways and public transport considerations are, under the NPPF, much more relaxed in rural areas.

It is worth noting that since 2006, Lopen alone has the potential to deliver 320 industrial (B Class) jobs and that this represents 44% of all jobs to be delivered in all rural settlements across the whole of South Somerset in SSDC's emerging local plan to 2028. In fact, this is already greater than that scheduled to be delivered in most of the larger rural centres.*

Even before the jobs gained from this latest approval are taken into account, Lopen and the surrounding area (including South Petherton) were recognised by SSDC's own independent employment review as having NO need for employment gain before 2028. Including jobs outside of the B classes, I estimate that Lopen now has the capacity to deliver at least 4 jobs for every economically active resident. The inevitable consequence is that employees are commuting from all over Somerset (by car because we have no public transport) including from areas that have a high employment need and vacant industrial land on their own doorstep. Sustainable development? I think not.

ACCESS TO SERVICES AND TRANSPORT

Last month I reported that South Somerset Together were holding an assembly during April for a comprehensive discussion about access to services and local transport and to consider the most promising potential district wide solutions. I did manage to attend this workshop and, whilst this is an ongoing debate, most of those attending seemed to agree that a single County wide information service covering all aspects of transport (public and private/community) and services provision was important and that volunteer groups will have to plug the inevitable and growing gaps in the provision for rural areas with, perhaps, some funding via development contributions (CIL and/or section 106 monies). There appeared to be a reluctant acceptance that public transport would, in future, most likely be limited to the main routes between the various market towns with increased frequency covering more hours and weekend/bank holiday cover included. It would then be for community-based schemes or other providers to connect local residents to the public transport routes. That said, there may be a compromise in that once or twice a week only, small buses could provide off-route links to the regular services. I will report further on this as matters develop.

LOPEN HISTORY GROUP

A few words about the village's history group which meets on the evening of the third Tuesday of each month at the Schoolroom next to the Church.

(Please see the back page for details of the forthcoming May meeting.) Topics discussed vary widely from Lopen memories to glimpses of life in earlier times from further afield. The meetings attract interested individuals from Lopen and the surrounding area and are usually well-attended. These are informal events with refreshments, a raffle and a chance for a chat afterwards.

Writes Valerie Canton... "This year we have been lucky enough to have two excellent talks so far. One, from Richard an Auctioneer who showed us pictures of kings and queens from the Tudors to the present day, was absolutely fascinating. The collection included many paintings that are not generally seen plus snippets of information that one didn't know about their characters.

More recently, Dr. Atkinson spoke about the influence of Quakers on the industrial life of our country. There are several well-known companies with a long history existing today which were formed by Quakers. A fact of which we were totally unaware."

Annual subs. are just £3 and you would be most welcome at our next meeting.

BENEFICE AUCTION RAISES RECORD SUM

The auction held at Hinton St. George on Wednesday 24th April raised the magnificent sum of £3,220 to be shared between the churches of Lopen, Dinnington, Hinton St. George and Merriott. The organizers wish to thank all who donated the wide range of quality items and, of course, those who bid for the lots.

NEIGHBOURHOOD WATCH

Over the last couple of weeks there have been a few incidents around South Petherton where someone has been taking either milk from people's doorsteps after it has been delivered or the money which has been left out for the milk. If you or anyone in your area has their milk delivered and pay by leaving money out then we are suggesting that you arrange another method of payment.

If you have any information regarding any of the incidents this can be reported on the 101 num
