Remembering November – a month for remembering.
- the month of sweeping leaves and bonfires.

When we look at the natural world around us changing with the seasons, do we stop and think of our own changes? Do we take time to consider who in our family is no longer with us except in our memories? The Church has an annual Thanksgiving service when we can remember them. This year it is on Saturday 2nd November at 3pm in St Boniface Church, in Bonchurch.

As a community we will remember those who have sacrificed their lives defending freedom in the many wars of the 20th century. Our Town service is in St Catherine's Church on 10th November at 3 pm. I will particularly remember then a boy I taught. He felt called to serve Queen and Country and was on his 3rd tour of duty in N. Ireland when he was killed.

On November 11th we have the 2 minutes silence in which to remember and give thanks. This was instituted in a proclamation by King George V in October 1919, & sent to all the countries the British Empire to commemorate the signing of the Armistice, at 11 o'clock on the 11th day of the 11th month in 1918, 'to take in this brief space a complete suspension of our normal activities.' As a small child I was utterly amazed when all the buses stopped and all the pedestrians stood still for what seemed to me to be absolutely ages.

I think regular times of silence are very important to slot into our busy lives. In these we can suspend our normal activities and all the pressures of life. Periods of silence can give us time to remember the joys in relationships, the happy times we have had with those who have passed on. Many will make us smile and we might even recount them to others, with laughter perhaps. Our memories root us positively to the past and propel us into the future. They give us positive feelings about ourselves to know we belong..

Joy is a positive emotion which helps us move forward with our lives after the initial sadness at our bereavement is passed. We have our Lights of Love (the Hospice Service) on December 11th, at 7.30 in St Catherine's, when we 'Light up a Life'.

When we concentrate on happy memories we are feeling happy emotions rather than sad ones. These we can celebrate in our special November and December services. Turning sadness into joy is like turning 'worry' into 'concern'. Worry is a negative emotion which drags us down, concern is positive. It can move us forward to seek to solutions.

As Christians our pattern of the year teaches us to hand over the sad times to God, that we may live more positively with our memories. We are glad, as we look forward to Advent when we prepare for the coming of Jesus the Saviour, with the high point of Christmas.

May you have happy remembering this November, as knowing Jesus turns your sadness to joy. Jenny H-H

Free Family Film Night "Fishermen's' Friends"

The film is based on a true story about Port Isaac's Fisherman's Friends, a group of Cornish fishermen from Port Isaac who were signed by Universal Records and achieved a top 10 hit with their debut album of traditional sea shanties.

For the healing of the nations

It is funny how things come together. Our old friend of this parish, Maurice Slattery, is a great fan of co-incidences, and they do so often provide interesting insights that would otherwise be missed. I have experienced one such set of circumstances recently, and this article was prompted by the introduction to a new hymn for me: 'For the healing of the nations' by Fred Kaan.

To begin at the beginning, a few weeks ago Holy Trinity PCC was asked to consider a last minute request from the local organisers of the Extinction Rebellion movement to hire our Hall for two meetings. The first meeting was to introduce the movement to prospective members and the second, more controversially, was to be trained in non-violent demonstration techniques. I am proud to say that the PCC wholeheartedly endorsed the request, and the meetings, though poorly attended I understand, went ahead without trouble. I did not go to either of the meetings, but I did think about it. That was as far as I got.

The second link was a very interesting sermon from Rev Greg Clinton-Smith which made the link between the aims of Extinction Rebellion in environmental stewardship terms, and those of Christians in general; suggesting in the process that the Church should take the opportunity to embrace this movement and thus demonstrate the continued relevance of the Faith.

Then I went to London on Monday 14th October and landed myself right in the middle of the demonstrations for which the meetings at our Hall had been preparation. I was going to an art exhibition (William Blake, as it happens; also, another campaigner against industrialisation) and was inconvenienced by the closure of Lambeth Bridge. Ha! I thought. Serves you right for not taking more interest in it.

And then, at choir practice on Thursday of the same week, we sang this hymn. You may be forgiven for not knowing it as I do not recall having sung it before myself, but I was immediately struck by the words and said 'This is a hymn for Extinction Rebellion'. In fact, it is also a hymn for world peace and accord, which is unsurprising since the writer of the hymn, Reverend Fred Kaan, was a pacifist. He was born into a Dutch family in 1929 and his experience of the Nazi regime propelled him in his late teens into the church and eventually he was ordained as a Congregational Minister in this country. He was a prolific writer and translator of hymns, and wrote 'For the healing of the nations' in 1965. For me, verses 1 and 3 are particularly relevant to the environmental situation that this country and the world find themselves in now, but all four verses are something which everyone, and especially our politicians, should be taking on board. Faint chance at the moment I fear, but I hope that we and the world start to listen very soon for the sake of our children all to follow. It is not the world we are trying to save, but humanity. The earth will look after itself, but it may not want us around if we

For the healing of the nations,
Lord, we pray with one accord,
for a just and equal sharing
of the things that earth affords.
To a life of love in action
help us rise and pledge our word.

Lead us forward into freedom,
from despair your world release,
that, redeemed from war and hatred,
all may come and go in peace.
Show us how through care and goodness fear will die and hope increase.

All that kills abundant living,
let it from the earth be banned:
pride of status, race or schooling,
dogmas that obscure your plan.
In our common quest for justice
may we hallow brief life's span.

You, Creator God, have written
your great name on humankind;
for our growing in your likeness
bring the life of Christ to mind;
that by our response and service
earth its destiny may find.

At the time Fred Kaan wrote this hymn, the environmental movement was really beginning to establish itself with several notable books and experts coming to the fore. It is a shame that it has taken us so long to understand the message. But then prophets are never recognised in their own country, or time, are they?

A time for remembering loved ones

HOTEL OF DREAMS.

People talk of holidays, of honeymoon hotels,
Of summer days spent in the sun among the hottest spells.
Flying off around the world to see exotic places,
It is so nice to get away from those box-like little places.

A holiday means such a lot to those who work all year,
To spend it with their families whom they hold so dear.
We need to let our hair down, relax and have a spin.
Does it really matter which resort we are in?

Of course it really matters! Our choice is in our dreams,
A little touch of Heaven or so it really seems.
To holiday with family, enjoy life in the sun
the importance of a family, it is time To have some fun.

The sea-side is a favourite for almost every girl and boy,
Mum and Dad, they like it too, it fills their hearts with joy.
It brings back happy memories, of days of yesteryear,
Memories mean such a lot, they are so very clear.

Long summer days of happiness as every child knows,
Ice cream, lollipops, inflatables and sand between their toes.
Music from the pier head, candy floss for sale,
paddle boats, the paddling pool and a great big blow up whale.

Later in the evening, it is time to see a show,
Lots of entertainment everywhere you go.
The moon begins to show its face (oh how that big moon beams,)
Now it's time to head back to our grand, 'Hotel of dreams'.
Ted.

MACMILLAN THE BIGGEST COFFEE MORNING IN THE WORLD 2019

On Tuesday 1st October we held our Fourth 'Biggest Coffee Morning' for Macmillan, in St Boniface Parish Church. The support was tremendous. Our famous Cake stall was overflowing, the other stalls, Tombola, Bric a Brac etc were full of wonderful things to win and buy and the Raffle was as good as ever. Our BCA friends were on hand with a couple of games, guessing how many cherries on a cherry and almond cake and finding the full bottle of wine amongst the empties. All of this accompanied by steaming hot cups of tea and coffee and of course Cynthia's mouth-watering hot sausage rolls.

It was a great success and we would like to thank everyone involved from the bakers who baked their hearts out, those who set everything up and cleared it away, the volunteers running the stalls and other activities and those in the kitchen who provided the refreshments and of course Pauline who washed it all up and put it away!

A huge thank to the following for donating raffle prizes.....CRAVE ICE CREAM -TINTO'S-QUIRKES-EVERYTHINGS ALL WIGHT-SCOTTS HAIRDRESSER-VENTNOR POST OFFICE-FABULASH BEAUTY-THE ROYAL BRITISH LEGION-VENTNOR BUTCHERS- AND TRAMEZZINI and not forgetting the generous donations given to us by friends who could not attend.

For an event like this to work you need willing volunteers, generosity and teamwork We are very lucky to have access to all three and this combination coupled with the public's support has enabled us to raise a magnificent £930 for Macmillan.

THANK YOU SO MUCH Sally Fitzgerald Bond and Sandra Gonzalez.

IRENE. (an obituary).

Irene was to me a Goddess, a Goddess so divine,
Her name means PEACE, no other name could ever be so fine,
Blessed with love and kindness, of gentleness so sweet,
She stole my heart entirely and swept me off my feet.

A romance pure, emotional of unconditional love,
built upon Angelic life straight from Heaven above.
Peace on earth is sacred, yes, Irene passed this way,
She often said: "I love you," it always made my day.

Irene is back in Heaven now, among the Angel realm
May Peace be with her always, to share with great renown.
I do hope she meets with Johnny, our dear beloved son,
And others that have passed this way, before us they have gone.

The sadness of our parting brought heart breaking tears of love,
Even though I knew the Angels wanted you, high in Heaven above.
It is six years since I lost you, my sweetest love, the best,
I am sure that you are happy, I find it hard to stand the test.

You remain my Irene, my everlasting peace,
I often think about you, those thoughts will never cease.
Those happy times together with our children close and free,
Sixty years together when you were physically close to me.

I hope you meet the Cherubim to fill your heart with joy,
The Angels will look after you and John, our lovely boy.
My writing is a little frayed, I tire these days, you see,
However frayed my writing gets, stay as close as you can be.

Ted.

Catherine of Alexandria

patron saint of young girls and nurses

Catherine is thought to have been a noble girl who lived in the 4th century. She was persecuted for her Christianity, and despised marriage with the Emperor because she was a 'bride of Christ'. According to the legend, Catherine was no push-over intellectually, either: she disputed successfully with 50 philosophers who were called in to convince her of the errors of Christianity.

Catherine protested against the persecution of Christians by Maxentius, and then she herself was tortured: broken on a wheel (later called Catherine wheel), but the machine then broke down itself, injuring bystanders. Catherine was then beheaded.

This legend strongly appealed to the Middle Age imagination. Catherine became the patron of young girls, students, philosophers, nurses and craftsmen such as wheelwrights, spinners and millers.

In England 62 churches were dedicated to her, and 170 medieval bells still bear her name. 'Lives', poems, miracle plays, stained-glass windows, panels and paintings have all been done in Catherine's honour.

Benefice Diary or Calendar of Events

A joint initiative between all three parishes is hoping to better inform everyone of events taking place in the benefice, and at the same time try to avoid clashes of important fixtures.

A Benefice Diary has been put together and will appear on the parish website under the events heading. You will be able to view it (but not amend it) and if you are planning events at your church, or considering events for which other organisations want to use our premises, it will be possible to check and see whether the venue is free and whether or not the proposed event would conflict with any others.

The master copy is held by Helen Slade (helenslade@btinternet.com) and if you want to add to, or amend, the spreadsheet please email her and she will update it, sending a new copy to the Hub for placing on the website.

This initiative will only be successful if people get into the habit of using it, and it has already proved useful in avoiding a potential clash. If it continues to fulfil a useful role, it may be possible to develop it so that amendments can be made more easily. But for the time being, administrative access to the spreadsheet will be restricted so that its effectiveness can be properly monitored. (Adrian Pinnock has a much more comprehensive booking record for St Catherine's which includes some events (such as regular Prayer Hub meetings) which are not shown on the joint calendar because they will not normally interfere with event bookings.)

If you have any problems I will try to rectify the problem, or otherwise help, as soon as possible.

Grandad was babysitting when he heard his little grand-daughter muttering the alphabet over in hushed tones. "What are you doing?" he asked her. "I'm praying," she replied. "I can't think of the right words so I just say all the letters. God will put them together for me 'cos He knows what I'm thinking."
