The History of the cat statues in York dates back to 1920, when Sir Stephen Aitcheson placed two on a building that he owned in Low Ousegate. Some say he put them there to scare away rats and mice though it's more likely that he thought they would be eye-catching and attractive. Others followed his idea and the odd cat started to appear around the city.....

Distance: 2.5 miles Easy.

Awaiting Winter bus timetable which comes into effect on 2nd October.

Meet at Eastgate Square tbc, or Malton Bus meet you.

I plan to have a sandwich stop at dinnertime.
After the Black Cat Trail we could walk the walls a distance of 2.5 miles (Sorry no dogs allowed on the historic city walls by York City Council) and follow it with a visit to a coffee shop for a drink, before returning home.
